A Terrible Tornado-Great Destruction of Property and Life.

MEMPHIS, September 30 .- The officers of the steamer Julia, which arrived here yester day, report a terrible tornado at Osceola, Arkansas, on Saturday morning. Osceola is about ninety miles above here, and was a thriving town of about three hundred houses. The tornado struck the the town at one o'clock on Saturday morning, and in a few minutes there was scarcely a house or building left standing, either in the town or its vicinity. Horses and cattle were blown about like straws, and the timbers of houses, fences, etc., were strewn in all directions for miles. The cotton fields were all destroyed the stalks torn up by the roots and the lint blown from the bolls.

Three churches and six large store house were blown down and the timbers carried away. The mills and cotton gins of Mr. Eddis was torn to fragments, not a vestige of any of them left. Two men and one woman were killed and from fifteen to twenty per sons were more or less injured, some of them it is thought, fatally. The tornado crossed the river, taking a northeasterly direction, tearing trees from their roots and levelling fences, buildings and everything in its course. The steamer Julia barely escaped its path.

been issued recently, and are still being issued with fictitious signatures.

The commission secured a letter from Benjamin H. Seligman & Co., Chicago, stating that the company had received from them since July 15th, 1871, $564 37. The commission is of the opinion that Secretary P. R. Vaughn is a myth. and that nobody named Ammer was ever Vice President, and that the Commonwealth Fire Insurance Company is and has always been an unmitigated fraud, a corporation unknown in the business circles of Baltimos city, without capital or organization, and that it is a swindle and fraud in every sense of the words. [Special to the Cincinnati Commercial.]

Washington, September 29.—The Admin-istration managers here are considerably ex-ercised over the pardon of Yerkes and Mercer, the Pennsylvania convicts, and do not hesitate to proclaim it a grave political mistake. It is conceded that Cameron, in bringing about these pardons, in order to have the evidence of Hartranit's corruption sworn away, must consider the chances of his candidate very despected indeed. sider the chances of his candidate very desperate, indeed. The Sunday Chronicel of this city, a staunch supporter of the Administration, in an editorial on the subject this morning, admits that the Republicans of Pennsylvania can not support Hartrant if they have not some stronger evidence of his purity and fieedom from corruption than the testimony of convicted felons. The same paper also of convicted felons. The same paper also says that the trick it is so transparent that it will cost the ring ticket ten thousand votes at least. After a delay of nearly a fortnight the elec After a delay of nearly a fortnight the election of a Senator in the Oregon Legislature for the term beginning next March, was held yesterday, and Mitchell was chosen by 41 to 12, the latter number being Democrats who supported the incumbent Corbett. Attorney General Williams, after spending three months on the stump in the spring, and who did more than anybody else to carry the State for the Administration, was put off with a simple vote of thanks, in which all with a simple vote of thanks, in the Republican members joined.

Mitchell, the Senator elect, will be one of the youngest men in the Senate, being only the youngest men in the Senate, being only about thirty-six years of age. He was formerly of California, and one of the early settlers in Oregon. He is a lawyer by profession, and for several years has been the attorney of Ben. Holliday and the railroad interests, and may be said to occupy a large space in the railroad and land grab rings.

[Special to the Cincinnati Enquirer.] Intimations have reached the Treasury that a corner is contemplated in New York to destroy the present currency balance of that Department, which is down to the very low figure of five millions of dollars. If the Secretary attempts to break up the com-bination by buying bonds, it is claimed that the ring can absent the ring can absorb every cent of the balance, and thereafter have the Department at its mercy. The deviation from the publish programme, and his interference in Wall street, are said to be one of the causes of the corner. Some interest was manifested, therefore, to-night to see if the Secretary would decrease his gold sales, and increase his purchase of bonds, but he adhered to his old programme of $1,000,000

Wife Whipping. Virginia Avenue is developing more champion wife whippers than any other locality, the last one distinguishing himself in that line being an old residenter reprobate named Thomas Muntz. For some trivial reason, one account being that she took 40 cents from his pocket without his consent, he beat her till the blood run. When Lieutenant Bray and Officer Goodell attempted his arrest, he resisted with his little hatchet, and came near making an incision upon Bray's head that would have quieted him for a life time. This forenoon the Mayor fined Muntz $15 40 for disturbing the peace, $35 40 for whipping his wife and $55 40 for resisting an officer-in all $107 20. Some lunatic went

Saturday evening the demi-monde establishment of Mrs. Charlotte Harrington, on East Washington street, was raided by Officers Bray, Osl inmates arrested. By this circumstance was disclosed the fact that Mrs. H.'s daughter Eliza, a girl barely fifteen years of age, had been seduced by one Harry R. Smith, alias Owens, with the knowledge and consent of the mother; and for this reason an additional charge of seduction was made against him. This forenoon the girl somewhat altered the statements of the night before against her mother and this Owens, affirming, however, that her ruin was effected under a promise of marriage and with her mother's knowledge. She wished to marry the defendant, and the last mentioned being nothing leth, the difficulty was adjusted in that manner, and the parties were solidly tied for life by the Court. The mother stated to the Mayor

THE tax-payers of Marion county can save about seventy-five thousand dollars a year if a just fee and salary bill is enacted and enforced. The county officers will be well paid for their services, and the great fortunes which are now built up at the people's expense, will be used for the public benefit.

THE organ has at last mustered up courage to assert that Tom Browne never said the man who voted for Greeley was dishonest, but according to its usual style it offers no proof. Its bare assertion will not go very far. The organ is not proving anything this season. Mendacity and fabrication are its chief weapons.

SENATOR Harlan, whom the Cincinnati Gasette has trequently proved a thief, is franking documents to Germans in Iowa which aim to prove that they must not vote for Greeley because he is a Christian and a temperance man. Mr. Harlan was formerly a Methodist minister and we wonder if, when it was his business to work for the salvation of souls, he thought that religion and temperance debarred a man from holding office. He had not gone into politics then.

THE Cincinnati Commercial thinks it is slightly peculiar that whenever a prominent Republican announces himself for Greeley, it is considered by the Administration papers the apt thing to defame his personal character. But there is a constant squealing because Grant and his favorites are spoken of in a spirit condemned by the old sedition law. If it could be established as the common law of the country that the Chief Magistrate and his "personal staff" (Cabinet) must not be spoken of disrespectfully, while it is needful to blackguard everybody venturing to oppose the Administration, we might as well take Wendell Phillips's advice, and when we get a military man for President, keep him in for forty years. As it would not be worth while to have a fuss every four years, the thing would be to lengthen the term of office to forty years; and after that it would occur to patriots that we must accept, as the true solution of the difficulty, life tenure of ### Oriminal Law.

The News has more than once discuss ed the character of our criminal jurisprudence, and pointed out the error upon which its mischievous leniency is based, as well as traced the course by which its effects proceed. That criminal law is radically defective, capable of but little alleviation and no reformation by the best judicial administration, is as evident as the existence of crime. In any given case, a gambler accustomed to calculating chances, would bet odds of a hundred against fifty on the acquittal, 'or totally nadequate and irrelevant punishment, of the criminal. We do not limit the remark to any special class of crimes, but extend it to every offense from misdeneanor to capital felony. The chances are in favor of the culprit, whatever the harge or the evidence. Judicial laxity nas something to do with this; custom has more, in fixing as an indisputable duty the toleration of every sort of trick or chicane employed by the detense, and the discountenance of any conduct but the severest adhesion to the most strictly construed rules by the prosecution; but the aw itself has most to bear of the blame for condition of crime and of property and ife without a parallel in any civilized and. The criminal is nowhere regarded is a wrong-doer, even after an indictment as been found. In the eye of our deormed law he is an unhappy victim of he hatred of community, who must be protected from its unjust and unsparing persecution. So he is hedged about by afeguards that half the time baffle all inrestigation and end a trial before it begins If it does not, the trial is a contest beween a plundered or wronged community with its eyes blindfolded, its hands tied, ts legs shackled, and a scoundred petted and aided by the law at every turn. The parties are not allowed to meet on a level, and attack and defend on equal terms, as n civil suits. The law senselessly presumes the community eager to cut off one of its own limbs, stab itself, beat its own ace to pieces, and provides that it shall not have a chance to investigate the conluct of one of its own members fully and This is the way it works, as we read in mistress of every house.

leading paper of St. Louis: which seem to have been expressly devised for the escape of malefactors. Not to enum-erate all of them, we may mention the law equiring a unanimous verdict; the law al-owing the guilty man an unlimited number of new trials, while retusing a new trial to he State, although the acquittal is procured by fraud or bribery; the eternal ding-dong of the doctrine of "reasonable doubt," which has been elaborated into a maze of metaphysical logic, enabling a calaboose lawyer to perplex the understanding and warp the judgments and consciences of the jurors; the conventional hamilies about the merciful conventional homilies about the merciful provisions of the law, which are injected by miveling Judges into their charges to the ury; the brow-beating of honest witnesses by professional shysters, whose disreputable performances are usually encouraged and assisted by the Judge; the rant and fustian of the advocates, who are allowed by indulg ent courts to travel out of the record to abuse opposite counsel and witnesses, and to sulogize the scoundrels who live upon crime; these are some of the abuses now prevalent in our criminal courts.

To these let us add the advantage of the murderer or thief in the selection of the jury; in arresting judgment; in the most strict construction of every question of law or evidence against the community and in favor of crime; in motions to quash indictments; in changes of venue; in delays to procure evidence; in the easy entertainment of sham pleas for continuance; the insecurity of bail, and the indifference of courts about bail bonds; the laxity of officers in exacting proper responsibility from sureties; and last but not least the frequent feebleness of the lawver for the community, compared with the well laid skill and well worn knowledge of the counsel for crime, and with this mass of advantages is it not very plain that crime is placed very nearly out of the reach of repression or retribution? That which is punished at all, is commonly cheap crime, larcenies that lose nobody much, burglaries that bear off an old coat and a dollar or two, embezzlements that ordinary care would have prevented. Big, fearful crimes, murders that freeze the blood, outrages that shock the soul, are so well lefended against the cruel and unjust prosecution of community that they come out of court bleached into self-defense or nsanity. And crime is nearly as safe an occupation as digging sewers or driving market wagons. Safer, for ditchers are ometimes crushed under a caving bank and market men'crippled or killed by runaway teams, and no such penalty ever overtakes crime within the refined influence of the capital of Indiana. May be we shall see a change some day in which the community will be recognized as entitled from the law to equal consideration with a murderer or thief.

POLITICAL CONVERSIONS.

Have the Democrats Really Experienced a Change of Heart - Do they Learn Nothing?

[From the Springfield Republican. Have the ex-slaveholders of the South and the Democratic voters of the North "experi-More and more c the result of the canvass is seen to depend upon the popular answer to this question. If they have, it is not only safe but in many ways politic and desirable to make Mr. Gree-ley President. If they have not, it is obvi-ously our most prudent course to re-elect General Grant

On the one hand, the Liberal newspapers and stump-speakers assume that such a change has really taken place; indeed; they make the fact the basis of their whole argument. Destroy this essential premise, and the whole fabric totters and topples. On the other hand, all the newcomers in the Republican party, the Mortons, Carpenters, Logans, Butlers, Lorings, are impressively scorntul and incredulous. True, they are themselves brands snatched from the b ing. True, the smell of pro-slavery Democ racy is still rank in their garments. But they insist to a man that their cases are exeptional—that they are to be regarded as miracles of saving mercy. New converts themselves, they vehemently argue the impossibility of political conversions. They scout as absurd and utterly preposterous the suggestion that the same causes—chiefly a shrewd perception of the drift of events and an enlightened self-interest—which have operated in their regeneration, may have operated similarly, though a little more tardily, in the case of their late associates. They are quite ure that in all these years the ex-slavehold ers and the Democratic statesmen and voters generally have forgotten nothing and learned nothing; that 1872 finds them standing precisely where they stood in 1860.

These positive gentlemen can not be ex-pected to be very well posted in the early history, or very intimately acquainted with the inner life of the Republican party. Un til it secured control of the government and had offices to distribute, they were zealously doing sutler's duty to the other side. But we speak to old Republicans—and there are a good many of that sort left over in Massa chusetts. We ask them to consider this mat-ter of political conversions frankly and can-didly, in the light of the own party history. Is it so very incredible, after all, that the Democracy should, in these twelve eventful years, have experienced a change on this question of the negro? Is the case without a parallel—without precedent? Hasn't Republican party gone through very much the same experience, only a little earlier? At first, did it not confine its efforts exclusively to checking the further extension of slavery? Did it not emphasize its disclaimer of any purpose to interfere with the institution in States where it al-ready existed? If not as intolerant, was it not as unsympathetic in its attitude vis-a-vis to the abolitionists proper—the Phillipses and Garrisons and Gerrit Smiths, as the Democracy themselves? Up to a very few ears ago, were not the great majority of the depublican politicians and voters as dead-se Republican politicians and voters as dead-set in their repugnance to universal suffrage as their neighbors of the other party, and as pronounced in their declarations against it? pronounced in their declarations against it?
Were not propositions to confer the right of citizenship upon the black man censured by Republican papers, smothered by Republican conventions, condemned by Republican votes? During the war was not every great forward step—the granting fugitive slaves sanetuary in our lines, the misting of negro regiments, emancipation self, encountered at first by a formidable depublican opposition? And, finally, is Republican opposition? And, finally, is here any good reason to suppose that the uffrage would have been conferred when it suffrage would have been conferred when it was upon the blacks, if the thing had not been seen to be a public and political necessity? These questions which the candid and fair-minded Republican voter, whose memory in party matters goes back for any distance, can answer but in one way. He must admit that, upon this negro question, both the tone of Republican opinion and the attitude of the Republican organization have undergone a remarkable process of change, and are now very different from what they were fifteen, or twelve, or even eight was were fifteen, or twelve, or even eight years ago. Similarly, if he asks himself the explanation of this change, he is shut up to one answer. It has been brought about by that most thorough and effective of all teachings—the teaching of events.

Well, our non-Republican countrymen treated with the of correction? Universal suffrage is an accomplished fact. The blacks, some millions have been incorporated in the They are our equals at is and in the courts. If they are still too feeble to look after rights for themselves, they have an overwhelming popular sentiment behind him. There is no more chance or possibility of their being re-enslaved or disfranchised than of these United States being reduced again to the condition of British colories. onies. To suppose that the Southern do not see and understand this, is whites do not see and understand this, is to insult the intelligence of the Anglo Saxon race. They do see it. They see, further, that their fortunes and those of these black neighbors of theirs have been bound up by the fates in the same bundle; that they have got to get on together in some way, and the only question is whether it shall be smoothly and prosperously or with continual jarrings, heartburnings and conse-quent mutual suffering and impoverishment. is it so very strange that, after a few years of foolish but not unnatural grumbling, the ex-slave holders should have concluded to accommodate themselves in the inevitableto look the facts of their situation squarely in the face and make the best of them? Is it so very strange that the Northern Democracy, with infinitely less reason for keeping ap the old, hopeless fight, with nothing to lose and very little to gain by giving it up, should have joined them in this new departure—the most natural, as it is the most hopeul that our politics have ever seen?

FIENDISH BRUTALITY.

Boy Literally Possessed of a Devil [From the Springfield Republican.]

A most remarkable specimen of youthful brutality has just been arrested at Boston in the person of Jesse Pomeroy, a boy fourteen years of age, who was taken into custody Chursday, on the charge of muilating Rober Gould, a boy of five years Pomeroy enticed the other boy away from home on Tuesday afternoon, and by threats compelled him to go with him (Pomeroy) to an obscure place on the line of the Boston, Hartford and Erie railroad, where he made Robert strip him to a telegraph pole and cut him with a knife about the head.

Soon after the arrest was made, Harr Austin, another youth, residing in South Boston, was taken to the station house, and immediately identified Pomroy as the party who stripped him on the 4th of August and inflicted three wounds on his back and one in his groin. These disclosures at once led the officers to suppose that Pomroy had committed the assaults in Chelsea and Charlestown, which so excited the peo of those cities some months ago, on account of the brilliancy exhibited, and, learning that until within a few weeks he had live in the latter city, the suspicious of the off cers were strengthened.

Further investigations show that Pomroy young as he is, is a most deliberate fiend, and the annals of crime will hardly furnish a parallel case. Several weeks ago two boys in Chelsea were found in an out-house on Pow-der Horn hill in a nude condition, and tied by the hands to a beam above. Their bodies were badly lacerated by the lash of a whip, which had been used by a third party seve years their senior, whom they described to the police. Public indignation was at once aroused, and a reward of $1,000 was offered by the city of Chelsea for the apprehension of the villian.

No less than 17 different boys were arrested on suspicion of having committed the crime, but were discharged, as the injured lads were sure that neither of them had anything to do with them. Although the Chelsea affair soon repeated itself in Charlestown and Chelsea, no clew was found by which the perpetrator could be caught, and the matter remained a mystery. When, however, the news of Pom-roy's arrest was received, City Marshal Drury of Chelsea became convinced that he had committed the outrages referred to, and in company with the boys, he went to Boston, Pomroy was brought from his cell at the Tombs, and no sooner had he stepped into the prison office than little Johnny Balch, seven years of age exclaimed; "That's the boy who cut me!" and appeared to be overoyed at his discovery. Other boys also ide ified Pomeroy, who subsequently confessed to having been the author of numerous outrages. He said he was very sorry for what he had done, and could not tell what prompted him to do it. He has always percentage of reputation as a quiet and peaceful boy, and would hardly be suspected of committing such offenses as those with which he stands charged. He appears to be perfectly rational, and has not the least indication of insanity. In a num ber of instances he has cut small holes under each of the eyes of several boys' faces, which eaves them disfigured for life, while in other ases he stabbed them in the thighs and other portions of the body. He seemed to delight in torturing his victims, and taken altogether, his case is one of the most remarkable or What disposition will be made of um is not yet known, though he will doubt ess become the inmate of some reformatory institution during his minority.

Singular Effect of War.

The invasion of France by the Prussian has left behind it one singular effect. Wherever the camps of the different armies were established there has sprung up a new vegeation., Foreign plants, before unknown in these regions, have appeared in great quan-tities, and the Algerian flora in many in-stances has been observed. A learned botanst, M. Vibrage, in a communication to the Paris Academy in reference to this strange phenomena, says: "It is not the epemeral appearance of a few plants sparsely dissemiappearance of a few plants sparsely dissemi-nated, raising the problematical hope of fix-ing in the soil a useless vegetable—it is an exodus, the migration of a flora, independent and complete. It is, in a word, a treasure which the central districts of France are called on to study and to appropriate. The propagation of these plants should not be left to chance, but human skill should be brought to bear on it."

WHAT GYPSUM IS.

Gypsum is a salt of lime, composed of 321/4 per cent. of lime, 46½ per cent. of sulphur, with 21 per cent. of water chemically combined. It is, therefore, a hydrous sulphate of lime. Some varieties are clear as glass, others are pellucid, and others again opaque, and colored vallow brown, blue or black. others are pellucid, and others again opaque, and colored ye'low, brown, blue or black. But all have exact's the same composition; and it is, therefore, not correct to say that there is as much difference between the varieties as between rotten soil and night soil, or, in fact, any difference in quality at all. Farmers have a prejudice against the dark colors, but there is no reason for it. Sometimes there may be impurities, which, how-ever, only dilute the gypsum and do not alter its chemical constituents or its valuable properties, except so far as to decrease the effect in proportion to the quantity of foreign matter; but this rarely amounts to more than a few per cent.

TO KEEP HORSES IN CONDITION. Some horses are habitually costive, which some norses are habitually costive, which arises either from a defective secretion of the fluids of the bowels, or that the absorbants act too strongly and take up too much of the liquid contents, by which the feecal mass becomes dry, hard and difficult to pass; or, it may, and frequently does arise from a defect may, and frequently does arise from a defect in the formation of the bile, either as to quantity or quality. This we know from what occurs in jaundice, in which, from a loss of the bile by extravasation, there is always present a strong disposition to a cost we habit. Some food is prone to occasion constipation, as whatever is stimulating or heating. Corn, therefore, has this tendency. Habitual costiveness should not be counter acted by purgatives, as they generally increase the evil; but attention should be paid to the habit itself, and the peculiar tendencies of habit itself, and the peculiar tendencies of that should be counteracted. Dry food should be remedied by occasional tran mash-es. Green food is particularly useful in these cases in summer, and carrots in winter. A costive state of the bowels may sometimes be remedied by placing a lump of rock salt

Washing Clothes. - Even in the matter of washing clothes, the investigations of scientific men have proved to be of considerable practical importance, if we may trust a paper just published in a French journal, wherein a writer recommends the following mixture as one which will save clothes from the in-jurious results produced by the use of soda. Two pounds of soap dissolved in five and a half gallons of water, to which add three large tablespoonfuls of ammonia and one of turpentine. Experimenters would do wall

This can best No. 1, one-fourth of an ounce per gallon of sulphate of lime should be added soon after the cider runs from the press. This can best be done by adding the sulphate of lime to a gallon or so of cider in a separate vessel, and after stirring well pour into the barrel. Ten ounces of this lime will be the proper quantity for an ordinary barrel. The cider will keep in the condition it was at the time when the lime was added. This plan will work equally well if the cider be partially or wholly fermented when the lime is put in. It does not appear to be absolutely necessary to rack off the cider unless it is to be transported; in that case it should be racked transported; in that case it should be racked off in about ten days after the application of

HARD AND SOFT WATER.—All housewives may not know how materially the effects of hard and soft water differ in the cooking of various vegetables; while one species of vegetables requires hard of soft water, as the case may be, another species becomes sensibly various vegetables; while one species of vegetables requires hard of soft water, as the case may be, another species becomes sensibly deteriorated by it. For instance, peas and beans cooked in hard writer, containing lime or gypsum, will not boil tender because these substances harden vegetable caseine. In soft water they boil tender, and lose a certain raw, rank taste, which they retain in hard water. Many vegetables (as onions) boil nearly tastless in soft water, because all the flavor is dissolved out. The addition of salt often checks this, as in the case of onions, causing the vegetables to retain their peculiar flavoring principles, besides much nutritious matter which might be lost in soft water. Thus it appears that the salt hardens the water to a degree. For extracting the juices of meat to make a broth or soup, soft water, unsalted and cold at first, is best, for it much more readily penetrates the tissues; but for boiling meats where the juices should be retained, hard water is preferable, and meat should be put in while boiling so as to seal up the pores at once.

The Coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death in the case of Fred. Gebhart. His remains were buried yesterday.

The Journal advocates the placing of John Given, the oldest citizen, upon the pension list, and that the city allow him $300 or $400 per year for maintenance.

Last evening Andrew Sprey accidentally fell down the cellar way of the National Hotel and was severely hurt, besides being rendered unconscious by the fall.

The Civil Engineers, Surveyors and Landscape Architects of this city, have formed an association for mutual protection, and have adopted a uniform scale of prices for subdividing property and doing the landscaping thereon. Their work includes original surfor zecord.

Mr. Cottrell is not a betting man, but $500 has been left with him to wager upon Mr. Hendricks' election, and a premium of $25 is offered to any man who will succeed in finding a party to cover the money.

Trotting Exhibition. To-morrow the fall exhibition of the Indianapolis Park Association commences, and if the weather permits there will be several interesting trials of speed. Complete arrangements have been made for the accom modation of visitors, special trains will run at stated periods, and tickets are on sale at the hotels and depots, so that admittance can be gained without the customary jam at the gate ticket office. The premiums offered by the association are very liberal, and there is reason to expect a successful meeting.

NA WEST AND Indiana State Pair.

The week for holding the annual State Fair has arrived, and from the large number of entries and the extensive preparations which have been made, it promises to surpass those of former years. A large number of exhibitors of live stock from every part of the Union have been induced by the liberal premiums to exhibit here in preference to St. Louis, and the display in this department will be very fine. Everything has been done by the members of the Board and the Superintendent to forward the interest of the ex hibitors and visitors, and ample arrange-ments have been made to turnish a supply of water for drinking purposes and for keeping down the dust. The several halls have been theroughly repaired, and the Floral Hall, under the direction of Mr. Johnson, promises to be one of the most attractive features of the Fair. The city is beginning to fill up rapidly with strangers and the interest manthoroughly repaired, and the Floral Hall, under the direction of Mr. Johnson, promise ifested by the people in all sections of the State insure a large attendance.

A Noble Deed. Some months ago a baby waif, but a few ian street. weeks old, was secretly left in the bedroom of the keeper of a notorious bagnio of this city, and was found by that woman on her return. The heart, not altogether dead to good things, warmed toward this little one, and she immediately adopted and cared for it, employing a colored woman at $3 per week for no other duty but to wait upon its wants. By some means, purposely or accidental, the infant's back had been broken before its adoption by this woman, a fact which intensified her love and tenderness in stead of cooling it. Give the Blind a Chance.

A school has been established in London England, where the blind are trained to sup England, where the blind are trained to support themselves as tuners, teachers of music, and organists. In Paris, plano tuning has long been considered the best business which the blind can follow. About thirty per cent. of the male pupils obtain their diplomes as tuners, and these average about $500 a year—quite a respectable income in France. In London, hundreds of the blind who are willing to work can find nothing to do, and those sent the baby and its nurse to Cincinnati, under the hope that a skillful surgeon of that city could relieve its sufferings. Last week this physician gave up hope, and on Saturday it was returned to Indianapolis, only to die early yesterday morning in the arms of its adopted mother. To day was the burial, and if the costly coffin mountings and rich trappings were any indications of this woman's heart, her grief at its loss was unfeigned and genuine. Twenty-two years has been lock master on the canal around Morrisburg Rapids, on the St. Lawrence river. He had been fishing off one of the islands below the town with a little success, and, looking down from his boat into the clear, green water, could see the fish moving lasily about. In taking a pinch of sunfi from his vest pocket he pulled out a silver sixpence, which, falling into the river, went wavering down through the water. The went wavering down through the water. The glitter attracted a large pickerel, which dashed for the sixpence and swallowed it. The sportsman pondered over the matter, and on his return home confiscated his wife's brass kettle, and, cutting a piece out of it, soldered it to a hook and set out with this new bait. Rough on Hartranft. Last spring, after the officers of the Army of the Potomac had got through their busi ness at Cleveland, a number of them had got together in friendly chat; among them were General Sol. Meredith and General Hartranft. Meredith was shaking hands and bidding farewell to his brothers in-arms; and coming to Hartranft, whose name he had forgotten or pretended he had, he took him by the hand, and recollecting he came from Pennsylvania, afforded him the following friendly counsel: "General, when you go back to Pennsylvania, you must induce that thief you have nominated for Governor to

The railroad army, according to the "tables of occupation" recently completed at the census office from the returns for 1870, consisted at the time of taking the census of 1,962 officers of railroad companies, 7,374 railroad clerks, and 154,427 railroad employees—a total, rank and file, of 163,303 squls.
This we must say, would form by itself a large army. Besides these, however, there were seventy-five officers, 767 clerks, 8,544 employees of express companies—in all 9,366 men. A Grant Man's Folly.

George Wilkes, of the Spirit of the Times, bet a Grant man $1,000 on Monday evening, at the Gilsey House, that he could not name ten States that would go for Hiram in November. The Grant man named Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Iowa, Michigan, Kansas, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin. This is practically a bet on the part of the Grant man that Hiram will carry thir teen States, as Ohio, Indiana and Pennsyl vania are not included in the list, and it morally certain that if one of these three States goes for Greeley in October Hiram can not carry all the before named term.—[N. # TME PI-UTES PROSPERING.

Hopeful Future Prophesied of Them. [Nevada Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

After all that has been said about these In dians, it may seem strange for me to say that I believe they will become civilized, and the whole nation blended with the whites before the lapse of many years. Their condition has been so materially benefited since the country has been settled by the whites, that the most stupid among them does not fail to see and admit it. Some of the most able Everybody should use Ellis & Co.'s among them are anxious to get farms and cattle, and live after the manner of their white neighbors. They do not wish to fight. Their minds are taken up with the problem of how they can increase the number of their horses, and, if possible, even trally obtain respection of a quartz mill tually obtain possession of a quartz-mill. Maybe some future statesman of Nevada will boast of his Pi-Ute blood, much in the same manner that Virginia politicians and Virginia gentlemen of our day boast of having the blood of Pocahontas in their veins. Who can tell? I have no idea that old Powhattan asing has, or that he was half as good a warrior. And this must be said of young Winnemucka, that he has the finest manners of any aboriginal in Nevada. He is a natural gentleman, aud a natural leader of men. There is nothing coarse or vulgar about him, and he moves about among white people with as much dignity and grace as the best of them.

Polite in the Extreme.

An Englishman and a German were travelling together in a diligence, and both smok-ing. The German did all in his power to draw his companion into conversation, but to no purpose; at one moment he would, with a super-abundance of potiteness, apologize for drawing his attention to the fact that the ashes of his cigar had fallen on his waistcoat, or a spark was endangering his necker chief. At length the Englishman exclaimed

BUSINESS NOTICES,

The People's Stamp of Value.

The Government endorsement, which legalizes the sale of Plantation Bitters, is not the only stamp affixed to that famous Vegetable Tonic. It bears, in addition to that official sanction, the still more valuable stamp of public approbation. This inestimable voucher of its rare properties as a Tonic, Corrective and Alterative, is of much earlier date than the government credential; for millions of sick persons had pronounced it the Grand Specific of the Age long before Congress thought of taxing proprietary medicines. It is unnecessary to repeat, in detail, the properties of this wonderful Vegetable Invigorant. The best reference that can be offered to those who desire the full particulars of its virtues, is the General Public. Ask those who have tried it as a remedy for dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, intermittent fevers, nervous debility, rheumatism, sea sickness, low spirits, or loss of vital power, what Plantation Bitters has done for them, and be governed by the response they make The People's Stamp of Value.
